It's a residence that is defined by this time and this place. A building with a distinct presence, yet one that is seamlessly integrated into the neighbourhood. A contemporary statement of now that builds upon a rich history. A home that complements the past, contemplates the moment and sets the stage for what's to come.

The greatest things in life don't require any bragging. They attract with a simple confidence, and an understated elegance. They pull us in with subtle but brilliant details, that always excite but never overwhelm. So when we built a residence designed for life at Ossington and Dundas, we imagined a home that speaks for itself. One situated in a neighbourhood that requires no embellishment. One with thoughtful amenities that need no introduction. And one that makes an ordinary day feel extraordinary.

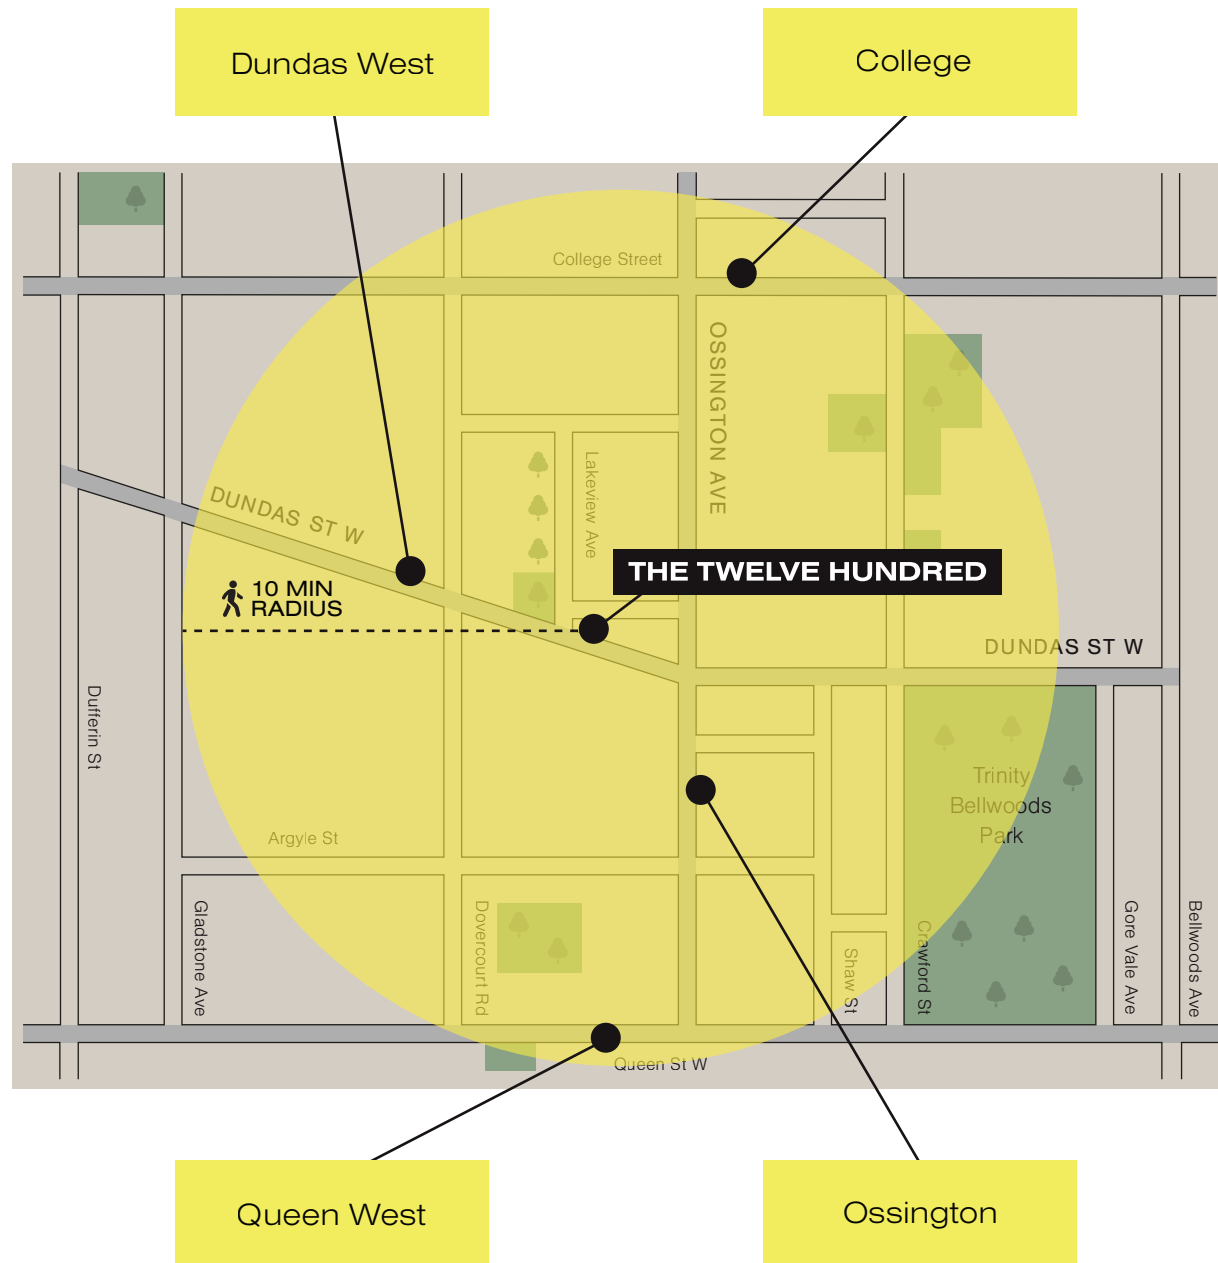

THIS IS THE TWELVE HUNDRED.
